Contents

Acknowledgments
Introduction

Section 1
Addressing the Causes of Tics
1. An Overview of Tic Disorders  3
2. Families Find Nonconventional Answers  17
3. The Problem: Diagnosis without Full Examination  51

Section 2
Identifying Triggers for Tics
4. ACN’s Survey on Tic Triggers  59
5. Understanding Survey Results  65
6. Letters on Triggers  71
7. Your Search for Triggers  89
8. After the Hunt  97

Section 3
Sensory Hypersensitivities
9. Types of Sensory Hypersensitivities  107
10. Tics and Visual Sensitivities  115
11. Electrosensitivity and Cell Phones  127

Section 4
The Environment and Immune System Connection
12. The Critical Environmental Link  135
13. Tics and Modern Lifestyles: Joseph S. Wojcik, MD  145
15. Autoimmunity in Brain Disorders and Mental Illnesses:
   Vijendra K. Singh, PhD  163
Section 5

Diet and Nutrition
16. The Role of Diet in Tic Disorders 173
17. Nutritional Therapy 193

Section 6

Clinical and Research Insights
18. Identifying and Treating Candida Albicans-Related Problems:
    William G. Crook, MD & William Shaw, PhD 211
19. Clinical Laboratory Tests as Treatment Guidance: Jon Pangborn, PhD 225

Section 7

Additional Therapies
20. Behavioral and Counseling Therapies 233
21. Other Approaches 241

Section 8

Getting Started
22. Finding Professional Help 255
23. Ten Tips for Success 259

Afterward 269

Appendix

References 275
Resources 279
Index 293